Market Research & Audience Analysis

Stage 01 in the strategy design.

FINAL PROJECT REPORT

LIFE AT FAST SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

Market Research:

Competitor Benchmarking:

Company	Specialty/Strategy
Lahore School of Economics (LSE)	- They have the professional social media feed, which represents the perfect balance of the academic and co-curricular activities. - But their engagement is only limited to one platform and the rate is relatively low as compared to others.
University of Management and Technology (UMT)	- They frequently use student centric strategy for the posts. - Mostly promote the programs and public relations of UMT with others. - Also utilizes Q & A and contests features of social media platforms. - But their visual lacks the cohesive brand image.
Comsats university Lahore Campus	- Their student societies and clubs have strong presence on social media, but their official page is not much popular than their clubs. - Always focus on the social life of departments, including technical and cultural events coverage. - But lacks the consistent posting frequency.
Information Technology University (ITU)	- Strong visuals focusing on the tech-savvy students' mindsets and always display tech-oriented fun content. - But have minimal human engagement rate on platforms.

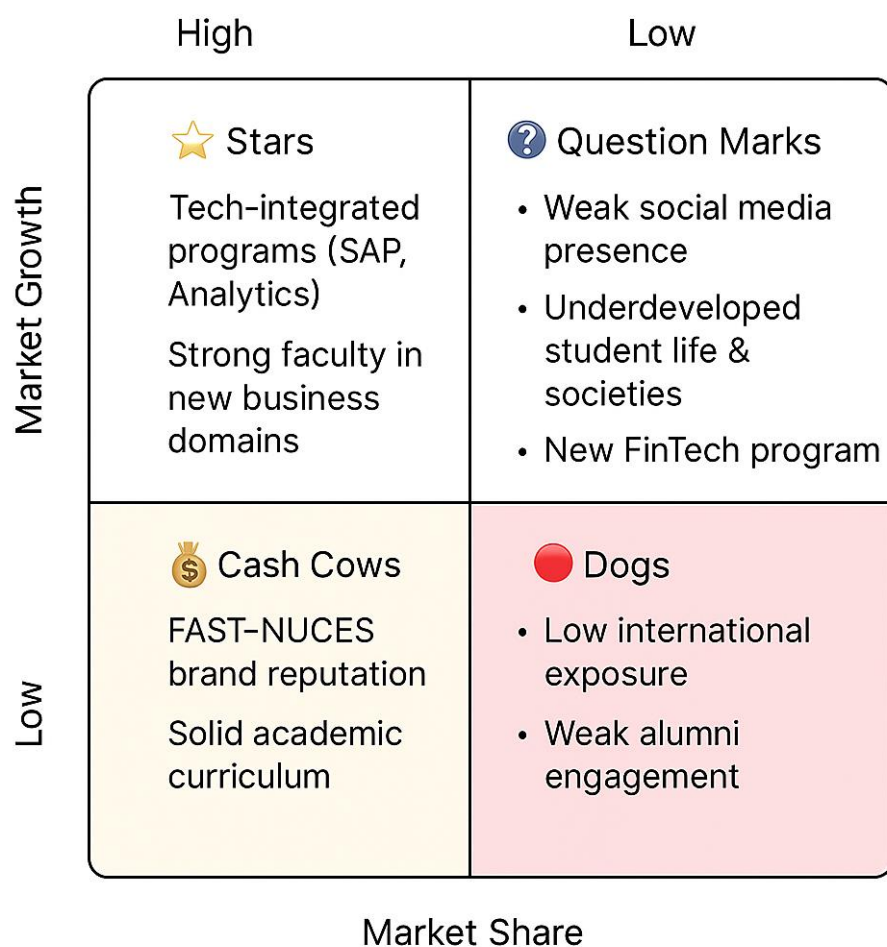

Understanding Company Position:

SWOT Analysis:

	STRENGTHS	WEAKNESSES
I N T E R N A L	- Associated with the well-known FAST NUCES - Curriculum that incorporates technology (e.g., SAP, Data Analytics, FinTech) - Robust Industry Memorandums of Understanding (e.g., Systems Ltd, Dir Action, IBP) - Faculty that is highly skilled and committed to research. - Place in the educational belt of Lahore	- Inadequate Digital Outreach and Social media branding - Not as well-known for extracurricular activities, student life, or global exposure. - Compared to LSE, UMT and COMSATS, the alumni base is smaller. - False belief that FAST is exclusively for IT students rather than business students. - Using Visual branding and storytelling inconsistently.

E X T E R N A L	OPPORTUNITIES	THREATS
	- FSM can be more inclusive than competitors like HSM and LSE, who seem elite. - An increase in need for business-tech hybrid capabilities like startups and AI etc. - COMSATS is visually disengaged: FSM may take the lead with superior strategy design. - Putting Students impact stories in front and center can increase the attractiveness.	- LSE's high-end social media approach might draw elite students. - Engagement is increased via HSM's interactive content (takeovers or poll etc.) - The tech-innovation focus of ITU aligns with FSM's target market. - Alumni and placement visibility are more prominent among rivals.

BCG Analysis:

Audience Analysis:

STDP Analysis:

Segmentation:

- Demographic: Students (17-26 age), Parents (40-55 age).

Engagement Strategy:

Purpose:

Developing an Engaging Social Media Promotional Strategy for FAST School of Management (FSM).

Activities Designed:

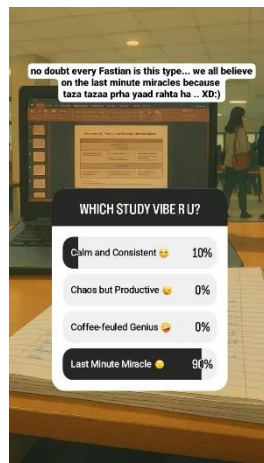

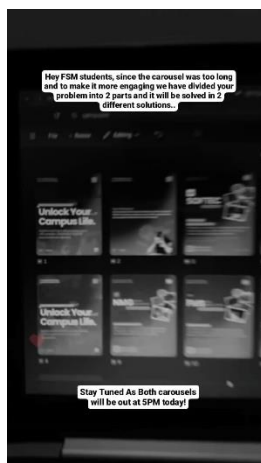

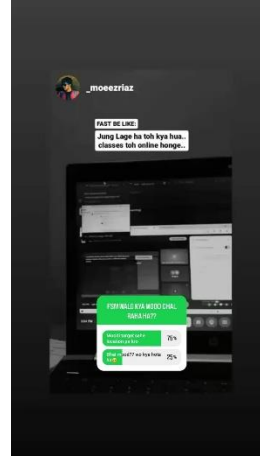

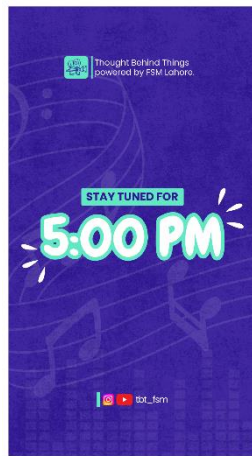

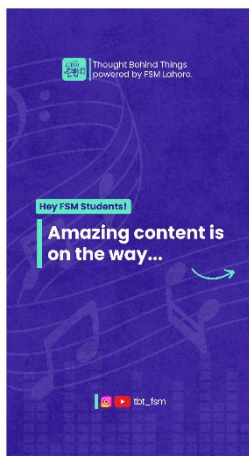

- Conducted Campus life polls asking audience to choose their favourite spot on campus
- Conducted a Q&A session asking fast students interesting questions like their purpose for coming to Fast and what new did they experienced.
- Did collab with senior and posted teasers for upcoming interesting audience engagement content e.g.: reels containing Softech content.
- Before finals posted humorous story sharing exam prep tips, using GIFs and stickers to engage students.

Objectives:

- Polls: Purpose for conducting polls about life at fast was to gather real-time feedback on student preferences to tailor future content (e.g., "Campus Life Poll").
- Q&A: Developed and build trust and transparency by addressing to audiences queries directly (e.g.: Q&A video teaser and announcement)
- Giveaway: To enhance brand reach which here is life at FSM through incentives sharing
- Interactive Content: Boost reliability and engagement during high stress period by sharing Exam survival tips.

Sample Execution Timeline:

Activity	Posting Timeline	Duration	Context
Campus Life Poll	Posted during Softech event to show the extra-curriculars in FSM.	24 Hours	Aligned with "Life at FSM" theme to showcase campus culture.
QnA session	Posted after Mid 2 and before Final to get student perspective about academics of FSM	24 Hours	Promoted the student experience and interest in FSM.
